How to access library databases

OACAS is pleased to provide access to library databases.

Through a subscription with EBSCO, Children’s Aid Societies and Indigenous Child and Family Well-Being Agencies in Ontario now have access to the following research products:

Sociology Source Ultimate is a large sociology and social work research database providing access to over 1,000 active full-text peer-reviewed journals. Select journals available through this database include Child & Family Social Work; Child & Youth Services; Child Abuse Review; Child Development; and Child Welfare.

Nonprofit Organization Reference Center is a research database of non-profit and business-related publications. This database provides coverage of topics relevant to corporate and board governance such as human resource management, volunteer engagement, and public relations.

Social Work Reference Center is an information resource created specifically for front-line professionals in social work and mental health. Instead of providing access to journals, Social Work Reference Center is a collection of topic overviews, job aids, and other ready-reference materials written by an editorial team at EBSCO who create content under a strict evidence-based methodology.

Access to the library databases is available via the OACAS Member Site. To access the databases, follow these quick and easy steps:

1. First log into your account at myOACAS.org.

2. Next click on the link for “Library Services” that appears on the right side of the landing page under Quick Links (shown right).

3. On the Library Services page you will find two links: one providing access to the main database portal (EBSCOHost research databases) and one providing access to Social Work Reference Center. Click on one of the two links for direct access.
